Lawmakers move DOMA forward

Texas versions of the anti-gay Defense of Marriage Act pass both House and Senate committees

By PENNY WEAVER

The Texas Senate was poised to vote Thursday on a state version of the Defense of Marriage Act, which would prohibit the state from recognizing same-sex civil unions, even though Texas already does not validate such "marriages."

In the last week, committees in both the Texas House and Senate approved DOMA legislation, which gay rights activists have called a "slap in the face" to gay Texans. Those moves send the issue to each chamber for a vote by all lawmakers.

"I think what the GLBT community in Texas should be aware of is it's very obvious in both the Senate and the House that they are going to do what they want to do and are not engaging in a dialogue," said Randall Ellis, executive director of the Lesbian/Gay Rights Lobby of Texas. "Texans should be outraged at that. What's next?"

"We have to beg and plead" to be heard by lawmakers, Ellis added.

On Thursday, April 3, the Texas Senate Committee on State Affairs signed off on legislation that would ban the state from recognizing same-sex civil unions. The proposal, Senate Bill 7, is also known as the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA), and was scheduled before the full Senate on Thursday, April 10, for a vote.

"Clearly the point of the bill is to encourage and protect the institution that is fundamental to our whole society and that is traditional marriage" between one man and one woman, said bill sponsor, Sen. Jeff Wentworth, R-San Antonio.

"People talk about discrimination as though it were a bad thing," Wentworth said in defending the bill. "It is something we do all the time."

Please see TX DOMA on Page 8

Partners of gay troops wait alone

Couples face added worries under 'Don't Ask, Don't Tell'

By LOU CHIBBARO JR.

Lauren, the domestic partner of a senior Navy enlisted person, drove her partner to the California port last November so she could embark on the destroyer that would soon set sail for the Persian Gulf and the expected war in Iraq.

Hundreds of teary-eyed but enthusiastic spouses and family members waived to their loved ones in the military as the giant ship pulled away from the dock.

But "Lauren," a lesbian who asked to remain anonymous to protect the identities of the couple, was not among them.

"I dropped her off that day," Lauren said. "But I did not get out of the car. We said our good-byes at home. It was for her safety — of not being discovered."

Lauren's partner is among the thousands

Please see MILITARY GAYS on Page 10

The military offers programs for heterosexual spouses of service members serving in the Iraq war, including support groups and emergency assistance. But the 'Don't Ask, Don't Tell' policy forces gay partners to hide their relationships and miss out on opportunities for help. (Photo by Greg Bryan/AP; Photo illustration by John Nail)
How do I get my face back?
Where have all my cheeks gone?
The drugs aren’t working anymore. What next?
Hard truth about structured treatment interruptions.
Resistant to everything? New AIDS drugs on the way.

Come to bear new information that your doctor may not have time to tell you.

Shannon Schrader, MD – Keynote Speaker 10 a.m.
Also presenting are CHARLIE SMIGELSKI, R.D., Internationally-known speaker and author from Harvard University and ANNA LOVE, facial technician and expert on facial restoration

9:30 Arrival and Continental Breakfast
10:00 Welcome and Introduction
10:05 Shannon Schrader, MD, Updates from the Retrovirus AIDS Conference
11:30 LUNCH (FREE)
11:45 Charlie Smigelski, R.D., Updates on treating lipodystrophy
1:30 Anna Love Getting Your Face Back: What are Your Options?

Saturday April 19, 2003 9:30 a.m. – 2:30 pm
Holiday Inn Select 2712 Southwest Freeway (Kirby & Highway 59)

RSVP required for FREE Lunch and FREE Child Care. Please call Houston Buyers Club at 713-520-5288 for more information. Register online at www.houstonbuyersclub.org
Health leaders warn of threat to gays

Syphilis on the rise particularly among gay men, while staph outbreak seen in general population as well

By PENNY WEAVER

Health officials are urging awareness of a sexually transmitted disease that appears among more gay men than the general population, while downplaying the increase of another potential health risk to gay Houstonians.

New statistics from the Houston Department of Health and Human Services show that infectious syphilis cases in 2001 in Houston and Harris County rose 75 percent overall and nearly doubled among gay and bisexual men, including those who don’t identify as such, according to a health department press release.

This is a particular concern for men who have sex with men (MSM), health officials note, because early symptoms of syphilis, which can be cured with antibiotics, are genital sores, which also can help transmit HIV. The rise in reported cases also causes concern that it signals a rise in HIV because gay and bisexual men are increasingly practicing unsafe sex.

Officials urge men engaging in anonymous unprotected sex to get immediate testing for syphilis.

“Anonymous sexual encounters hamper intervention efforts,” said John Poff, STD Prevention Program manager with the department’s Bureau of HIV/STD Prevention. “Without the ability to notify anonymous partners, we are unable to provide testing and treatment to sexual contacts of people with the disease.”

New infectious cases of syphilis — known as primary, secondary and latent, or early, late — rose last year to 830 in Houston and Harris County. The number of syphilis cases, including people who have progressed to the late latent stage of the disease, reached 989 in 2001 in this area. Some 899 cases were reported in 2000, and the total number of syphilis cases among MSMs was 227 last year, up from 107 in 2000.

The local increase mirrors that of other cities. Among gay men, the number of new infectious syphilis cases in 2002 increased to 114, nearly double the 57 reported in 2001. The total number of syphilis cases among MSMs was 227 last year, up from 107 in 2001.

The local increase mirrors that of other major U.S. cities. Last fall, federal health officials reported an outbreak among Houstonians of a skin infection that began surfacing late last year among gay men in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

At the time, Mark Sanders, director of clinic services for Houston’s Montrose Clinic, which treats a number of gay men, said it was too early to tell if the increase in incidences of the infection was primarily among gay men.

The skin condition is known as Methicillin-Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus, or MRSA, and also has been reported on the rise among gay men in Washington, D.C., and Atlanta.

Wayne Bockman, MD, a Montrose Clinic physician, said the rise in MRSA does not appear to be unique to gay men.

“We are seeing it. We’ve got several cases. Whether it’s particular in gay men or not, it’s too early to say,” Bockman said. “What I think is happening is we’re seeing MRSA in the general community. It’s everybody’s problem, not just gay folks.”

Bockman said that other doctors, whose clients are primarily heterosexual, also have treated more cases of MRSA lately.

“They tell me they’re seeing something similar in their patient population,” he said. “It’s here but I don’t think it’s just in the gay community.”

Sanders said MRSA is treatable, even though it is more resistant to some antibiotics.

“We’re still seeing more staph infections. Some of those are getting bad,” he said. “We’ve got some good treatment protocols in place.”

“It’s heightening our awareness,” Sanders added.

According to Kathy Barton, chief of public affairs for the Houston health department, health officials still are uncertain how widespread the staph infection outbreak may be.

“We don’t know how big the problem is,” Barton said. “It’s actually difficult to diagnosis in many cases.”

An epidemiologist with the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said the cases appear to confirm earlier findings by CDC researchers that a new, undetermined factor is causing MRSA to flourish in a wider group of people, including gay men. Until the late 1990s, the pesky skin infection had been confined mostly to elderly patients in hospitals and nursing homes, CDC officials said.

Health officials said MRSA can be contracted easily through casual contact.

“It’s a relatively easy-to-pass infection,” Sanders said. “It can be spread sexually but it can be spread in many ways.”

Houstonian Tony Dodd is prepared for a blood test by a Houston health department worker during testing hours at All Star News bookstore. A recent rise in cases of syphilis among gay men sparked owners of the bookstore to offer the location for free testing each Thursday. (Photo by Dallas DeFiar)

Houston officials urge medical providers, particularly those with many gay patients, to get some good treatment protocols in place.

“If there are people with a history of syphilis in their sexual contacts, that can be passed on and infect the new contact,” Sanders said.

It is also crucial, he added, to focus testing on people who may be at risk of contracting the disease.

“The trend sparked prevention efforts aimed at sexually active gay men, despite a focus by the Centers for Disease Control & Prevention on abstinence as the main defense against sexually transmitted diseases, according to Ron Valdissier, deputy director of the CDC’s Program for HIV STD & TB Prevention.

“The overall syphilis rate in the United States rose by 2 percent between 2000 and 2001,” Valdissier said. “The syphilis rate among men in the United States are by 15 percent (in the same time period).”

Houston health officials urge medical providers, particularly those with many gay patients, to get some good treatment protocols in place.

“If there are people with a history of syphilis in their sexual contacts, that can be passed on and infect the new contact,” Sanders said.

It is also crucial, he added, to focus testing on people who may be at risk of contracting the disease.

“Anonymous sexual encounters hamper intervention efforts,” said John Poff, STD Prevention Program manager with the department’s Bureau of HIV/STD Prevention. “Without the ability to notify anonymous partners, we are unable to provide testing and treatment to sexual contacts of people with the disease.”

New infectious cases of syphilis — known as primary, secondary and latent, or early, late — rose last year to 830 in Houston and Harris County. The number of syphilis cases, including people who have progressed to the late latent stage of the disease, reached 989 in 2001 in this area. Some 899 cases were reported in 2000, and the total number of syphilis cases among MSMs was 227 last year, up from 107 in 2001.

The local increase mirrors that of other cities. Among gay men, the number of new infectious syphilis cases in 2002 increased to 114, nearly double the 57 reported in 2001. The total number of syphilis cases among MSMs was 227 last year, up from 107 in 2001.

The local increase mirrors that of other major U.S. cities. Last fall, federal health officials reported an outbreak among Houstonians of a skin infection that began surfacing late last year among gay men in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

At the time, Mark Sanders, director of clinic services for Houston’s Montrose Clinic, which treats a number of gay men, said it was too early to tell if the increase in incidences of the infection was primarily among gay men.

The skin condition is known as Methicillin-Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus, or MRSA, and also has been reported on the rise among gay men in Washington, D.C., and Atlanta.

Wayne Bockman, MD, a Montrose Clinic physician, said the rise in MRSA does not appear to be unique to gay men.

“We are seeing it. We’ve got several cases. Whether it’s particular in gay men or not, it’s too early to say,” Bockman said. “What I think is happening is we’re seeing MRSA in the general community. It’s everybody’s problem, not just gay folks.”

Bockman said that other doctors, whose clients are primarily heterosexual, also have treated more cases of MRSA lately.

“They tell me they’re seeing something similar in their patient population,” he said. “It’s here but I don’t think it’s just in the gay community.”

Sanders said MRSA is treatable, even though it is more resistant to some antibiotics.

“We’re still seeing more staph infections. Some of those are getting bad,” he said. “We’ve got some good treatment protocols in place.”

“It’s heightening our awareness,” Sanders added.

According to Kathy Barton, chief of public affairs for the Houston health department, health officials still are uncertain how widespread the staph infection outbreak may be.

“We don’t know how big the problem is,” Barton said. “It’s actually difficult to diagnosis in many cases.”

An epidemiologist with the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said the cases appear to confirm earlier findings by CDC researchers that a new, undetermined factor is causing MRSA to flourish in a wider group of people, including gay men. Until the late 1990s, the pesky skin infection had been confined mostly to elderly patients in hospitals and nursing homes, CDC officials said.

Health officials said MRSA can be contracted easily through casual contact.

“It’s a relatively easy-to-pass infection,” Sanders said. “It can be spread sexually but it can be spread in many ways.”

Houstonian Tony Dodd is prepared for a blood test by a Houston health department worker during testing hours at All Star News bookstore. A recent rise in cases of syphilis among gay men sparked owners of the bookstore to offer the location for free testing each Thursday. (Photo by Dallas DeFiar)
Keynote speaker announced for transgender unity banquet

The 11th annual Houston Transgender Unity Banquet will be held on Sunday, April 26, and the keynote speaker for 2003 will be Lisa Mottet. A Washington, D.C., resident, Mottet is the legislative lawyer for the Transgender Civil Rights Project at the National Gay & Lesbian Task Force. Through her work at NGLTF, Mottet assists transgender activists and allies with passing anti-discrimination laws and ordinances that prohibit discrimination based on gender identity and expression at the local, state, and federal level. She graduated cum laude from Georgetown University Law Center in 2001 and magna cum laude from University of Washington in 1998. The master of ceremonies for this year's Houston Transgender Unity Banquet will be Don Gill of Don Gill Productions. The banquet also will feature live entertainment and a dance to follow in the grand ballroom of the Southwest Hilton. Tickets are available at unity_tickets@hotmail.com. Individual tickets $40; Platinum Sponsors are $600; Gold Sponsors are $350; Silver Sponsors are $125; and Friends Sponsors (a ticket for someone in your name) are $60. On Saturday, Mottet has requested a round table discussion for all gay activists in the Houston area. This round table will be held at the hotel from noon until 2 p.m.

GLBT center to mark National Poetry Month

Local gay poet Howard Michael will be the featured poet at a Friday, April 11, reading at the Houston GLBT Community Center in Montrose. The reading, which is free and open to the public, will mark National Poetry Month. Other poets scheduled to read include Thomas Blanton, who organizes monthly poetry readings at the center; Aaron Coleman; and Hampton Burt. For more information, contact Blanton via e-mail at thomas@roadsidezoo.com. The Houston GLBT Community Center is home base for gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender individuals in the metropolitan area and southeast Texas, according to center leaders.

Krewe of Olympus presents $35,000 to local charities

Krewe of Olympus Texas, Inc. presented a total of $35,000 to five non-profit organizations this month. The money was raised by the group through a number of fund-raisers over the course of several months. From left are Denise Martin of the Krewe, Matt Soileau of Montrose Clinic; Gary Tejeda of PFLAG/HATCH; Bob Hargroover of Houston Bayou Club; Krewe member Robert Brooks; and Annie Couch, Krewe president. (Photo by Dalton DeHart)

Charity groups benefit from Black Tie Dinner

Houston Black Tie Dinner Inc. has announced that proceeds from the fall event were distributed to the seven organizations selected as beneficiaries of the 2002 Houston Black Tie Dinner. Each of the following groups received $8,000, for a total of $60,000 donated: Bering Omega Community Services, H.A.T.C.H., Lesbian Health Initiative, Montrose Clinic, Montrose Counseling Center, People With AIDS Coalition of Houston and Resurrection Metropolitan Community Church. Dinner officials also announced new members elected to the board of directors for 2003: Rocky Atwood, Bill Lee, Mary Ann McBee, John Parker and William Tayan. The 2003 Black Tie Dinner will be held on Saturday Nov. 15, at the Doubletree Hotel Post Oak, with entertainment by the comedienne and actress Kathy Najimy, best known for her roles in the movies "Sister Act," "Soapdish," and "The Wedding Planner," as well as for her co-starring role on the television comedy "Veronica's Closet."
You know how to accessorize...

...your entire life.

You live for technology.

Why not drive on it?

The advanced technology of Bridgestone.

Created with a vision.

Tested with a vengeance.

Bridgestone.

Where technology drives the tire.

THE ULTIMATE
BRIDGESTONE
TIRE SALE!

Select Potenza, Dueler and Turanza tires are on sale March 31 through April 26.

For a participating retailer near you, call toll free: 1-877-TIRE USA or visit bridgestonetire.com.

BRIDGESTONE
A GRIP ON THE FUTURE

bridgestonetire.com
MARGOT KIDDER joins
Amy J. Carle & Starla Benford

FINAL HOUSTON ENGAGEMENT
THE VAGINA MONOLOGUES
"A BONA FIDE PHENOMENON."
THE NEW YORK TIMES

SPREAD THE WORD

MAY 13-18
WORTHAM THEATER CENTER

KUHF 88.7FM HOUSTON PUBLIC RADIO
Special Group Rates: 713.629.3700
ticketmaster.com

City council includes gays, transgenders in anti-bias code

EL PASO — LAMBDA GLBT Community Services praised the El Paso City Council on Tuesday for voting to add sexual orientation and gender identity to the city's Municipal Code on discrimination.

"Today's vote is a major victory for gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgendered El Pasoans and an important sign of progress for the entire city," said LAMBDA President Rob Knight in a press release from the group. "El Paso has affirmed its commitment to ending all forms of discrimination, and for the first time in this city's history, gay men and women, and transgendered persons, are no longer second-class citizens." Knight praised the efforts of Mayor Raymond Caballero and Jan Sumrall, District 1 representative for the City of El Paso, in passing the legislation. LAMBDA is El Paso's oldest and largest nonprofit agency serving gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgendered residents. Since 1991, LAMBDA has provided services throughout the region aimed at eliminating inequality, mistreatment, and violence that result from anti-gay bias.

Gay rights group opposes promotion of former leader

SAN ANTONIO — A former Fort Campbell commander nominated for a lieutenant general promotion faced opposition from gay-rights advocates meeting in San Antonio last week, the Associated Press reported. Members of the American Veterans for Equal Rights contend that Maj. Gen. Robert T. Clark bears some responsibility for a 1999 hate crime at Fort Campbell. Ky. The San Antonio native, now a Fort Sam Houston general, was the post commander at Fort Campbell when Pfc. Barry Winchell, 21, was beaten to death in his sleep by a drunken soldier on July 6, 1999. Winchell's parents, who live in Kansas City, Mo., spoke April 3 to about 60 members of American Veterans for Equal Rights. Wally Kuttesle, Winchell's stepfather, and his wife, Patricia, said they feel an anti-gay environment at Fort Campbell caused their son's death. The couple aren't sure if their son was gay because he dated young women, who openly befriended gay kids. Clark said in an interview that he began teaching values about respecting fellow soldiers in February 1998, when he became commander of Fort Campbell. After the killing, the post instituted specific policies to discourage anti-gay remarks and actions, Clark said. "We were very proactive" in discouraging hostile environment for gay soldiers, he said. Clark was cleared of any wrongdoing after an Army investigation. A private named Calvin Glover, of Sulphur, Okla., received a life sentence in the murder.

Conroe librarian honored for defending banned books

A woman who helped fight efforts to ban two young adult sex education books from Montgomery County library shelves has been awarded this year's PEN-Newman's Own First Amendment Award, the Associated Press reported. Jerilyn Williams, director of the Montgomery County Library, will receive a $25,000 prize at the PEN's annual gala on April 22 in New York City. Last August, commissioners in Montgomery County, located north of Houston, agreed to temporarily remove two books, "It's Perfectly Normal" and "It's So Amazing," both by Robie H. Harris, after complaints, particularly from the conservative Republican Leadership Council. The group objected to what it described as the books' pro-homosexual stance and explicit illustrations. Williams worked to convince a review committee looking into the books to put them back on library shelves. "Librarians like Jerilyn Williams are on the front lines of censorship battles every day; their commitment to intellectual freedom often the only thing standing between us and the book-burners," said Pat Schroeder, president and CEO of the Association of American Publishers and one of this year's judges for the PEN-Newman's Own Award.

Gay tolerance issue brings controversy to A&M faculty

COLLEGE STATION — A bitter controversy erupted in February in the Texas A&M University College of Education regarding a proposed tolerance statement for gays has prompted faculty members to accuse each other of bigotry, the campus newspaper, the Corby, said. The college's faculty advisory committee was considering a final draft of a diversity statement in its first proposal. Eight professors, including Stephen Crone, associate dean of the college, signed a letter objecting to the statement, which says faculty must "celebrate and promote all forms of human diversity" and lists sexual orientation as a protected status, along with race, gender and other categories. The letter suggests the committee adopt a general non-discrimination statement similar to that of the university and said Christian faculty should not have to "celebrate and promote" a lifestyle they believe is immoral. In a Feb. 26 memo, Conoley rebuked the arguments and others set forth in the letter. Conoley also instituted a new policy that states the college "celebrates and cherishes GLBT people." The statement, which is enforced as the college's policy and is separate from the faculty committee's statement, grants gays on the faculty "special access to protection and support" and states that any decision about promotion and tenure involving gays deserve "heightened scrutiny.

From staff and wire reports

1 MORE INFO
LAMBDA GLBT Community Services • 915-562-4297
e-mail: admin@lambda.org • www.lambda.org
the BIG voice:
God or Merman?

a new musical written and performed by Steve Schalchlin and Jim Brochu directed by
Anthony Barnao

Presented by Stages Repertory
Theatre, PFLAG-Houston and the PFLAG/HATCH Youth Scholarship
Foundation

All tickets are $30, with a portion of the proceeds benefitting PFLAG-Houston and the PFLAG/HATCH Youth Scholarship
Foundation.

This production generously underwritten by Nixon Wheat, the Elliott H. Matthews Foundation and the Mayor's Initiative Program through the Cultural Arts Council of Houston/Harris County

at Stages Repertory Theatre
April 4 - 19, 2003

Tickets 713.527.0123 or www.stagestheatre.com
TX House vote on DOMA could come any day

TX DOMA, continued from Page 1

Daniel Roney of San Antonio took issue to the bill. He said he and his partner of 29 years pay taxes and their bills, vote and live like any married couple, even though they can't get married.

"Now the Texas State Legislature wants to pass a law that tells me that my 29-year relationship with the one I love has no value whatsoever and I find that deeply offensive and hurtful," Grane said.

Ellis urged lawmakers to vote against the legislation, saying Texas law already prohibits gays and lesbians from obtaining a marriage license in Texas.

Ellis said he believed the legislation reinforces "the fact that gay and lesbian Texans are regarded as second class.

"We must stand up to state-sponsored discrimination," he said. "Gays and lesbians are denied hundreds of rights and privileges that heterosexuals enjoy. Tax exemptions, legal protections, the right to make medical decisions for our partner -- there are literally hundreds and hundreds of rights and benefits that we do not have.

"If we try to protect ourselves with legal documents, it can cost thousands of dollars," Ellis added. "The second-class status that has been cast upon gays and lesbians must come to an end."

Ellis urged lawmakers to vote against the bill.

On Monday, the House Committee on State Affairs approved legislation that would ban the state from recognizing same-sex civil unions -- a House version of a state DOMA. That proposal now moves to the full House for a vote.

In the House, the act is known as House Bill 38 and is sponsored by Rep. Warren Chisum, R-Pampa. The bill passed committee 5-2, with Reps. Glenn Lewis, D-Fort Worth, and Mike Villarreal, D-San Antonio, casting the "no" votes.

Ellis said the Texas Legislature, led by a Republican majority, is now particularly unfriendly to gays, as evidenced by bills like these.

"It's not the same as it was the past 10 years," Ellis said. "We can no longer 'skate' in that we [no longer] have friends in high places like before.

"Garnet Coleman and Jessica Farrar cannot carry the weight of the GLBT community on their shoulders," he added. "I really hope that this serves as a wake-up call."

It is good public policy, good for business and good for Texas."

State Rep. Garnet Coleman (D-Houston) signed on as a joint author to Farrar's bill.

• H.B. 862, filed by Coleman on Feb. 11. This measure, also known as the Dignity for All Students Act, would protect Texas students from discrimination based on characteristics including race, religion and sexual orientation.

H.B. 862 was referred to the Public Education Committee on Feb. 18. Chair of that committee is Rep. Kent Grusendorf of Arlington, a Republican. Members of the panel include Rep. Scott Hochberg of Houston, a Democrat.

Farrar signed on as a joint author to the Dignity for All Students Act about a week after it was filed.

• H.B. 916, filed on Feb. 12 by state Rep. Sid Miller (R-Stephenville). He calls the bill the Defense of Families Act; it would prevent two people of the same sex from filing a joint petition for adoption of a child.

H.B. 916 was referred to the Juvenile Justice & Family Affairs Committee, just as Talton's H.B. 194 was sent to that panel.

To date, no other lawmakers have signed on as sponsors, co-authors or joint authors to Miller's proposal.

• H.B. 1136, filed on Feb. 20 and referred to the State Affairs Committee on Feb. 26, was proposed by Democrat Villarreal.

The legislation that would ban discrimination in housing and employment based on sexual orientation. It defines sexual orientation as "having a preference for heterosexuality, homosexuality or bisexuality; having a history of such a preference; or being identified as having such a preference.

The bill also would make it illegal to refuse to sell or rent property based on sexual orientation. The sexual orientation legislation proposal also lays out rules for hotel and motel operators, realtors, labor unions, employment agencies and advertising publishers.

• H.B. 111, filed by Talton, would prevent unmarried Texans from serving as foster parents. It was referred to the State Affairs Committee on March 12 and has no other legislators signed on as co-authors to date.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.
Fla. politician apologizes for comment linking gays, porn

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — Hollywood Commissioner Sal Oliveri drew protests from gay residents when he spoke out April 2 against the city allowing an adult entertainment business, the South Florida Sun-Sentinel reported. “Wake up America … otherwise you have a pervert or a homosexual living next to you,” Oliveri said during a commission meeting. Almost a dozen protesters gathered outside of City Hall two days later to demand an apology. “I want you to know I’m offended for anyone to say my sexual category throws me into a pedophile category,” Carol Hoehn, a pediatric nurse, told Oliveri after he came outside to meet with them. Oliveri, a 13-year veteran of the commission, apologized for including gays in his criticism. “Everyone who is righteous has a right to live the way they do,” he said.

ACLU uses on behalf of gay Ark. student

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A federal lawsuit filed by the ACLU on April 8 claims that the Pulaski County Special School District violated the constitutional guarantees of free speech, equal protection, privacy and separation of church and state in its treatment of gay student Thomas McLaughlin. Over the course of 16 months, school officials at Jacksonville Junior High School allegedly told the teen’s parents he is gay, forced him to keep quiet about his sexual orientation and suspended him for not doing so. “My school forced me out of the closet when I should have been allowed to come out to my family on my own terms and when I thought it was the right time,” McLaughlin said earlier this month. “And now the school has been trying to shove me back into it ever since.” The lawsuit seeks an injunction on further action against McLaughlin. “We’re taking them to court to ensure that other lesbian and gay students in the district wouldn’t face similar discrimination,” said James Esseks, litigation director for the ACLU’s Lesbian & Gay Rights Project.

S&M convention prompts protests in Okla. city

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — A S&M leather convention last weekend, dubbed Tribal Fire 2003, raised the hackles of local religious leaders. Paul Klassen, president of the Edmond Ministerial Alliance, urged Christians to devote the weekend to prayer and fasting. “We ask God to deal, forgive and deliver all who are in bondage to a self-destructive life,” the alliance said in a statement. The event, held April 4-6 at the Ramada Plaza Hotel Edmond, featured seminars and demonstrations by nationally recognized S&M leaders. “The hotels wouldn’t invite us back if we wanted a problem,” said Susan Wright, spokesperson for the National Coalition for Sexual Freedom. The NCSF spoke out last year when complaints from religious groups prompted Cendant Corporation, the hotel franchiser that includes Ramada and Howard Johnson, to issue a letter warning local hotels about booking “controversial guests.” In a clarification letter sent to the coalition, Cendant promised to honor the rights of franchisees to sell rooms and meeting space to “the persons of their choice.”

Colo. student suspended for calling referee ‘gay’

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — A sixth-grader whose ball was called out of bounds during a playground game was suspended for two days for saying the call of the student referee was “gay.” West Middle School student Ben Madison, 12, said he thought the word meant “dumb” until his mother explained it. Principal Jody Mimmack said students are warned about such behaviors before they are suspended. “We work very hard to create a safe environment for students,” Mimmack said. The principal said Madison also would have been suspended if he had referred to the playground call as “dumb” or if he had teased the other student about a hairstyle or ethnicity. But Madison’s mother complained her son was being treated “as a test case.”

Lesbian teacher in Utah wins effort to oust her from job

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Supreme Court on April 4 left it up to education officials whether to fire a lesbian high school teacher. The ruling was a victory for psychology teacher Wendy Weaver, who came under attack from parents and students at Spanish Fork High School in a heavily Mormon part of Utah. Teachers are required by law to be moral models for their students. A lawsuit accused Weaver of falling to be a good role model because her sexual orientation conflicted with state laws prohibiting sodomy. Weaver, who now uses her unmarried name Wendy Chandler, said the court’s decision was a relief. “What they were going after was not really within their right as citizens to do,” Weaver said of her critics. Weaver disclosed her sexual orientation when asked by curious students in 1997. Shortly thereafter, the high school barred her from talking about it, and Weaver later won a federal lawsuit against the Nebo School District for that requirement. Parents and students tried to remove Weaver by complaining to the local school board, but the district did not fire the award-winning, 20-year teacher.

From staff and wire reports

April 13 • "Are You Ready For The Messiah?"
Rev. Janet Parker

Maranatha Fellowship
Metropolitan Community Church

“Building Community Through Compassion”
Visit Our New Improved & Larger Nursery/Children’s area

Church Service begins at 10am and nursery is available for small children.
Midweek “Home Group” services on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

3333 Fannin, Suite 106, at 10AM
Church office 713-528-6756 • E-mail maranatha@ev1.net
www.maranathamcc.com

Celebrating 26 Years in the Community
COME WORSHIP WITH PRIDE!

Catholic Mass Celebrated
Saturdays at 7:30pm
1307-H Yale • 713-880-2872

Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church
Maundy Thursday Liturgy at 7pm
Good Friday Liturgy at 7 pm
Easter Vigil on Saturday at 11pm
Easter Sunday 9-10
Breakfast/10:30 Easter Liturgy

2515 Waugh @ Missouri • 713.526.3269
e-mail office@gracelutheran-houston.org
Gay Marine seeks conscientious objector status

Reservist says sexual orientation influenced his 'moral development'

By LAURA DOUGLAS-BROWN

SAN JOSE, Calif. — As an unknown number of gay soldiers serve in silence in the U.S. war against Iraq—banned from living openly by the military's "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" policy — a gay Marine reservist came out earlier this month as part of his application for conscientious objector status.

Lance Cpl. Stephen Funk, 30, drew national media attention when he held a press conference April 1 outside of the 1st Beach Terminal Operations, 4th Landing Support Battalion in San Jose — much more press attention than the platoon of gay soldiers serving in Iraq receives. But Funk's case likely won't have much impact in the ongoing debate about gays in the military, according to Aaron Belkin, director of the Center for the Study of Sexual Minorities in the Military at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

"Some opponents of inclusion could cite this case as evidence that gays and lesbians are not patriotic," Belkin said. "I do not think most people would find that argument compelling, however, since even the Pentagon has agreed that gays and lesbians are as patriotic as everybody else."

At the press conference, Funk said he didn't realize the full implications of military service when he enlisted last year.

"I refuse to kill," Funk said. "It is scary to confront the military, because the military teaches you to submit to orders even when you object."

As part of his application for conscientious objector status, Funk told military commanders that he is gay.

"My moral development has also been large and influential, which is why I am homosexual," Funk wrote. "I believe that as a gay man, someone who is misunderstood by much of the general population, I have a great deal of experience with hatred and oppression."

Military families are invited to see their service member loved ones depart for their overseas journey, but Heather isn't sure if she wants to go.

"She would like me to see her. We have to be careful about our usual way of talking to each other and touching each other," Heather said.

Like Lauren, Heather said she doesn't want to compound the stress and challenges her partner faces in the coming weeks by coming out as lesbians.

"I'm at a loss," Heather said. "I've been sending her mail. I sort of take things day by day. It's very hard."

Although she doesn't think her letters are being monitored, Heather said she tries her best not to write anything that would cause problems for her partner. "I try to keep them general, like someone who just cares about her, to make it sound like a family."

In doing this, she insisted, she is telling the service member what is going on, including our pets, a dog and four cats — a dog who is not happy his mom is gone.

Anonymous e-mails

Lauren, whose partner's ship is in the Persian Gulf, said the two consider themselves lucky to be able to communicate with each other, via e-mail.

"Her e-mail is monitored for security," Lauren said. "So I set up an e-mail account without my name. I never put my name anywhere on it. It's not fool proof, but it's safer than using my regular e-mail."

Within the confines of her anonymous e-mail messages, Lauren added, she feels free to express her true feelings.

"We feel we have to communicate with each other," she said. "I tell her I love her and I miss her. I tell her that all the time."

In describing her partner's job on the destroyer, Lauren said, "Her main duty is to sit at a console and watch a radar screen," which she said "sees a picture" of the ships in the air, including all ships, planes, and missiles in the Gulf.

"If you want to know if the Gulf is dangerous, it is," she said. "The entire Gulf is considered a combat zone and a hot spot."

Luna-Wolfe of the MCC Church in Hampton Roads said gay service members and their partners have been members of her congregation for years. She said the sudden deployment of thousands of troops in the Norfolk area, which is home to eight separate military installations, placed a great strain on military families, especially partners and loved ones of gay service members.

"Like any denomination, our military members are coming to us for support," she said. "It's a place for partners and loved ones to talk and cry. It's a place where they know they're not alone."

Like family members of all service members, Luna-Wolfe said partners of gay troops engaged in combat in Iraq have been glued to their televisions, their emotions swinging from a sense of pride and joy to fear and horror. The gay service members, who mostly have adjusted to the task of having to conceal their sexual orientation, are sending back messages of confidence, she said.

"The reason they write is not very often — they always say, 'We're going to be alright.' They say that all the time," Luna-Wolfe said.

Heather said the assistance that MCC churches plan to offer is sorely needed.

"The one thing I would like people to know is we are so disconnected," she said. "I have been left out of the loop of families of service members.... I don't have access to any of this."

MORE INFO

Servicemembers Legal Defense Network
PO Box 65300
Washington, DC 20035
(202) 546-8584
www.sldn.org

Servicemembers Legal Defense Network

P.O. Box 65300
Washington, D.C. 20035
(202) 546-8584
www.sldn.org

Flanked by his sister and mother, gay Marine reservist Stephen Funk spoke to reporters April 1 before turning himself in at his unit in San Jose, Calif. (Photo by Eric Risberg/AP)

To some critics — including conservative talk radio hosts Rush Limbaugh and Neal Boortz — the move smacked of someone willing to take any route to get out of the military.

"What we are seeing with what he is doing is obviously someone who doesn't want to serve," said Maj. Carolyn Dyart, spokesperson for the Marine Forces Reserve.

Acknowledging his sexual orientation could make Funk eligible for discharge under the military's "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" policy, which bans openly gay service members.

But triggering a possible DADT discharge isn't Funk's reason for saying he is gay, according to Amy Allison, a conscientious objector from the first Gulf War who is serving as an informal adviser to Funk as he seeks similar status.

"Stephen has never requested discharge for any other reason than being a conscientious objector — he is opposed to war," Allison said. "But there is a conflict between 'Don't Ask, Don't Tell,' which says people in the service shouldn't disclose their sexual orientation, and the military's policy that suffering gay service members can be discharged if they apply for conscientious objector status, which require service members to be sincere and honest in outlining the influences on their moral development and why that is incompatible with military service."

Servicemembers Legal Defense Network

P.O. Box 65300
Washington, D.C. 20035
(202) 546-8584
www.sldn.org

Flanked by his sister and mother, gay Marine reservist Stephen Funk spoke to reporters April 1 before turning himself in at his unit in San Jose, Calif. (Photo by Eric Risberg/AP)
Philadelphia District Attorney Lynne Abraham decided April 3 to investigate the killing of Nizah Morris, a transgendered woman bashed on the head in December, the Philadelphia Daily News reported. "If the district attorney can unearth something, we'll be happy with that," Homicide Capt. Thomas Lippo said. Gay activists accuse police of a sloppy investigation, but authorities say they have no clues and no witnesses. Morris, 47, was found lying in the street with a massive head wound on Dec. 22. The medical examiner's office said she was murdered, but police didn't rule it a homicide for weeks, fueling criticism that they were not taking the case seriously because Morris was transgendered. On the night of her attack, Morris collapsed drunk outside a gay bar and refused a ride home in a police car. Passing motorists found her lying in the street minutes later. Police won't release toxicology reports and did not file a report on offering Morris a ride.

Three held over for trial in Calif. trans teen killing

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — Three men pleaded innocent to murder April 2 in the killing of transgendered teen Gwen Araujo, and their trials could start nine months to a year from now, said Gloria Allred, attorney for the victim's family. The killing took place Oct. 4 after Araujo was discovered to be biologically male at a party at the home of Jose Antonio Merel, 23. Araujo was beaten to death, and her body was buried in a shallow grave. Merel, along with Jason Michael Cazares and Michael William Magdison, both 22, faces charges of murder in a hate crime. A fourth man, Jaron Chase Nabors, 25, pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter in return for testifying against his friends. Magdison was released on bail in February to undergo drug counseling, but was sent back to jail at the end of the preliminary hearing. No action has been taken on a motion by his lawyers to again grant bail.

Lesbian judge in Calif. held for trial in domestic dispute

SANTA MARIA, Calif. (AP) — A lesbian Santa Barbara County judge was ordered April 1 to stand trial on charges of battery, brandishing a gun and drunken driving, which could end her career on the bench if convicted. The trial date will likely be set at an April 18 hearing. Hall, 32, was arrested Dec. 21 after an argument with her domestic partner, Delira Dykeman, who told officers Hall threatened to shoot one of their dogs. The confrontation came after Dykeman discovered that Hall took some Christmas wrappings that Dykeman purchased for herself. "I never saw her like that before," Dykeman said in a preliminary hearing. Hall bragged of a loaded .38-caliber revolver and smashed the telephone before driving off, according to Dykeman. Hall was later arrested for drunken driving with a .18 blood-alcohol level, more than twice the legal limit. Using a gun to dissuade a witness and destroying a telephone to block calls to police are felonies.

Partner arrested in gay leader's stabbing death

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — A man was arrested and charged with criminal homicide in the death of his lover April 3 after telling police the lover attacked him then fled. Kenneth Stephens, 21, told police he was stabbed by Michael Pierson, a 40-year-old gay activist and health educator, during a Jan. 28 domestic argument. Stephens was hospitalized, and police filed a warrant charging Pierson with assault.Pierson's body was found March 13 in a golf course lake near where the argument allegedly took place. An autopsy showed that Pierson suffered a single, fatal stab wound to the chest. "[Stephens] never indicated that Mr. Pierson had been stabbed or injured in any manner," said Trooper Chuck Sands. Stephens is being held without bail. Pierson's friends said the couple broke up a few days before he disappeared.

Accused gay LAPD deputy chief joined program to boost pension

LOS ANGELES — Two days after gay Los Angeles Police Department Deputy Chief David Kalish was suspended over allegations that he sexually abused male teens in a police-youth program in the '70s, he joined a deferred pension program that boosts his income more than 60 percent, according to the Los Angeles Times. The city program pays each month into an interest-earning account to be spent at retirement. Employees who sign up must retire within five years. "It appears that he qualifies for it," said Capt. Jim Tuteau, director of the Command Officers Assn. "But this is certainly not what the program was designed for." Whatever the outcome of the criminal investigation, which the district attorney is still considering turning over to a grand jury, Kalish will receive the extra payments that began accruing April 1. Six people, including three who contacted authorities after Kalish's suspension became public, allege that Kalish abused them.

From staff and wire reports
A new war, a new me

Eleven years ago, when bombs fell on Baghdad, I was singing the national anthem in support. This time around, coming out has changed my view.

By MILES CHRISTIAN DANIELS

I was on my way home from 7-Eleven when a song was interrupted with news that America was bombing Iraq. A nervous reporter gave play-by-play commentary. Bombs and bullets exploded in the background.

I had just turned 14 and remember the sense of pride I felt that night. In some things, I wish things were still the same. But a few details from Operation Desert Storm are still fresh.

Peter Arnett and Bernard Shaw became household names. That ghostly green night-vision camera, which brought the bombing into our living rooms, still occasionally emerges in my dreams. And I fondly remember Mom hanging the American flag on our front porch post and tying a yellow ribbon around the rusted anchor on our front yard.

That war lasted less than two months, and Bush Sr. declared victory. Years later I would learn we didn't even come close to winning, and that hopeful Iraqi citizens, who had welcomed our troops with song and dance, were later slaughtered as they tried to finish what we had started. I also learned that all we did was help to toss stale bread from a moving aircraft.

Though Wancheuse, our small fishing village in coastal North Carolina, had sent no troops, the community rallied behind George Bush Sr., much like it's doing today with his son. And I stood behind them — not only on the issue of war, but on other moral issues.

I believed abortion was murder, with no exceptions. I believed that gays went to Hell, even though I battled those "demons" myself. I believed Bush Sr. was seated next to the Father's right hand and that listening to liberals would poison my thoughts and hinder my walk with God.

I guess, in a way, being gay has been good for me. And being gay and from Wancheuse even better. Though I'm still loved by many there, even more consider me a depraved sinner and an embarrassment.

Even in high school and early college, I held onto my beliefs. I became a licensed minister in my denomination, and served for a year-and-a-half as a full-time youth minister. Life was on-track, and Wancheuses, as they're known, couldn't have been more proud.

Until I came out.

AT FIRST, I WONDERED IF MY MORAL METAMORPHOSIS was a sort of inner revolt — a way of coping with the fact I was now deemed a sinner — an immoral enemy, in the eyes of those I had loved and grown up with. I started writing newspaper columns about gay issues and accepting and loving all people regardless of their differences. The beliefs I once held so dear had seemingly deteriorated.

A few nights before our current president announced our invasion of Iraq, I stood in downtown Wilmington, N.C., holding a lit candle poured through a paper cup holder. Crowded around were a couple hundred people who like me — did not think we were doing the right thing.

There were Catholics from the downtown parish, activists from the Green and Democratic parties, a handful of local college professors and students, and a healthy representation of gay men and lesbians. We silently prayed for peace and then we went home.

Though I tried to conjure up the emotions I had felt during the first Persian Gulf War, they just weren't there. In fact, at that moment, I would have been lucky to stumble through that first line of the "Star Spangled Banner."

And, in addition to my prayer for our brave troops, I added a few others to the list, like those Iraqis whose lives would be lost in the line of erroneous bombs and bullets — those civilians who had asked for none of this.

I even offered a prayer for Saddam Hussein. After all, I was taught that Christ came for the most grave of sinners.

While standing silently at that vigil, I also thought about how my life has changed in these brief years since America's first war in Iraq. How only a few years ago, I would have been on the other side of the street waving our flag, holding high my sign proclaiming Hussein a devil, and shouting at those who were not being patriotic.

I guess, in a way, being gay has been good for me. And being gay and from Wancheuse even better. Though I'm still loved by many there, even more consider me a depraved sinner and an embarrassment.

So, I've had to learn the hard way what it's like to be thrust on the other side of enemy lines. And I've felt the pain of those who are hated, spit upon and — for some — even murdered for simply being who they are.

Miles Christian Daniels is a freelance writer and documentary filmmaker in Wilmington, N.C. He can be reached at mcd5024@uncw.edu.
viewpoint

REV. JIM WEBB

Support for sodomy laws is built on a platform of religious fraud, taken out of context to repress gays and support a notion of public morality.

Sins of Sodom revisited again

TEXAS’ BAN ON GAY SEX SHOULD BE overturned because it violates the constitutional right to privacy. I hope it will be overturned because it degrades Texans of equal protection under the law—the law applies only to gays. The Texas law against “homosexual conduct” is based on religious teachings, so it also constitutes a violation of the separation between church and state.

Conservative groups support the law because gays are not so popular among the religious right. But their attack on private acts on the basis of “public morality” is built on a platform of religious fraud.

Sodomy laws are based on Biblical teachings taken out of context, misunderstood and misinterpreted by time, translation and design. Most of us are woefully ignorant of its teachings, except for a few “just-so” stories from Sunday School, and the Hollywood Biblical epics.

In this case, our ignorance is used against us. The Biblical misunderstandings created sodomy laws that are used as a weapon against us. They are selectively enforced to ruin lives and terrorize.

THE SIN OF SODOMITES WAS NOT “THE wickedness of homosexuality” as those on the religious right would have you believe—it was a lack of hospitality and their worship of pagan idols.

Sodom was a tiny fortress in the barren wasteland of the Dead Sea, according to biblical scholar Dr. Rembert Prudnick. The only strangers that the people of Sodom ever came into contact with were enemies bent on destroying them, or on taking over valuable trade routes.

When word spread through this small enclave that Lot had visitors, Sodom’s inhabitants naturally became curious and wanted “to know” them. It is illegal that they wanted “to know them in the Biblical sense,” but simply that their fear fueled their curiosity.

As the crowd became larger, more fearful and more unruly, Lot sent out his daughters. If the male inhabitants of Sodom had been gay, it is illogical that Lot would have appeased them by sending out his daughters.

When God destroyed this city, we believed that God did so as a result of homosexuality. But this biblical passage’s mistranslation of the phrase “to know” contributed to a religious, cultural, and legal bias against homosexuals. The phrase “to know” is used 940 times in the Bible, according to Truheek, and is only interpreted to mean “to have sexual relations with” twice. In both places where it is used in this way, the traditional meaning of “to know” makes more sense.

Other biblical passages that reference Sodom and Gomorrah actually refute the premise that God destroyed these cities due to homosexuality. For example, Ezekiel 16:49-50 clearly indicates that God destroyed Sodom due to its inhabitants’ lack of hospitality. Deuteronomy 2:21-26 adds idolatry to the list of “sins” that caused this city to be destroyed.

Neither passage mentions homosexuality.

THE CONCEPT OF SODOMY DIDN’T EVEN really exist until the 11th century, when Christian reformer and hermit Peter Damian coined the term to categorize an abstract set of homocentric acts, elevating them to the level preoccupying sin, according to Mark D. Jordan in his book “The Invention of Sodomy in Christian Theology.”

This categorization was based on the same misinterpretations of Sodom and Gomorrah, and fueled by the early church fathers’ continued discomfort with human sexuality which had been evolving for centuries. In this example, the truth became distorted not only because of translation differences—translating Aramaic speech into Greek writings—but also when the early church fathers’ discomfort with sexuality and pleasure influenced the interpretation of the ancient teachings.

This distortion has been the basis of religious intolerance, social oppression and legalized victimization of gays through sodomy laws that are still enforced today. Sodomy laws not only violate our right to privacy and equal protection under the law, the laws also violate the separation and church and state when it is held up to the scrutiny of the truth.

This is a case where the truth can literally set us free.

---

The Mostly Unfabulous Social Life of ETHAN GREEN

by Eric Omer

We didn’t expect the Republican Guard and the Israelis to fight so dirty, but believe me, everything is going according to plan.

The Plan is Great.

Yes, supply lines are stretched. Yes, we underestimated the number of ground troops we need. But I assure you, everything is going according to plan.

Yes, the enemy we’ve encountered is not the enemy we “war planner” against. Yes, we thought they’d welcome us and throw us a parade, rather than shoot at us, and suicide bomb us. But, please understand, it’s all going according to plan.

We’re hoping Soviet is real. Saddam is really dead because the “Sadism” on TV was wearing plaid clothes, and our plan says the real Saddam only wears contact lenses in any event. So no reprisals, the war is going according to plan.

What you got to know is: This plan, it’s a good plan. And this war, it’s going according to plan.

It’s not going according to plan.

What you got to know is: This plan, it’s a good plan. And this war, it’s going according to plan.

It’s not going according to plan.

Not unless the plan was to go to hell in a handbasket.

Yes, I said it would be over quickly. Yes, I know that our supply of MREs Ready to Eat is running low. However, we’re reaching our objectives and all is going to plan.

Yes, I knew it would be over quickly. Yes, I know that our supply of MREs Ready to Eat is running low. However, we’re reaching our objectives and all is going to plan.

Yes, I know it would be over quickly. Yes, I know that our supply of MREs Ready to Eat is running low. However, we’re reaching our objectives and all is going to plan.

eric_omer@ethangreen.com

---

Rev. Jim Webb is an ordained interfaith minister and author living in Washington, and can be reached at revjimwebb@aol.com.
"Sexual preference? Jesus, no, it means nothing to me. (One of my mentors) is as gay as Christmas, and so’s my brother. I’ve been around gay guys since I was, oh, 16. They’re just good pals. From Day One we got on, made jokes, and I thought nothing of it.”

Irish actor Colin Farrell (Washington Post, April 9)

“How do I handle a gay proposition? ‘Not interested, thanks.’ You know, it’s amazing the changes in people. ... These same people who would’ve freaked a few years ago — well, they’re not on their knees [bawdy slang], don’t get me wrong — but they know that a good person is a good person.”

Farrell, on changes in attitudes toward homosexuality (Washington Post, April 9)

“I never thought I’d be sitting around talking about oral sex in front of my mother. That just got to me.”

Gay Congressman Barney Frank (D-Mass.), whispering to Congresswoman Maxine Waters (D-Calif) during testimony in the Clinton impeachment hearings, in which Frank’s 86-year-old mother, Elsie, was present; all captured in the newly released documentary “Let’s Get Frank” (Washington Post, March 27)

“(San Francisco) awarded a man who had a sex change as its Woman of the Year. When he accepted the award, ‘he’ said there was a part of ‘him’ that didn’t want to accept it— but that’s gone now.”

“Tonight Show” host Jay Leno, on the male-to-female transsexual honored by gay California Assemblyman Mark Leno (D-S.F.); Leno’s monologue prompted protests from transgender rights activists (NBC’s “Tonight Show,” March 31)

“World’s highest-paid female impersonator. ... [She] sports the face of Jimmy Cagney on the body of Mayor McCheese and lugs around the personality of George Wallace. The only good thing about Leona Helmsley is she’s so mean, stupid and ugly that you honestly can’t even envy her riches.”

Naming Leona Helmsley, one of the “50 Most Loathsome New Yorkers” (New York Press, March 25)

“Homosexuals can and do serve honorably in the Marine Corps. Homosexuals can and do make some of the best Marines. Homosexuals are capable of military service and can and do perform as well as anyone else in the military. We hesitate to discharge Marines solely based on a statement they make about their sexual orientation.”

A private memo written by Marine Corps Captain Darrell Allen, of the Twenty-Nine Palms Marine Corps base in California, subsequently leaked to the Servicemembers Legal Defense Network

“While people were requesting we get involved, it was not a role I felt our station should take. We have a very wide audience, and a lot of our listeners are people who have children. People see our DJs as role models in some ways.”

Doug Gillen, general manager of KISS 105.3 FM, the most popular radio station on the University of Florida campus, on why the station declined to participate in a college Pride Fest, prompting boycotts against the station from campus student groups (365gay.com, March 31)
Reclaiming the great outdoors

By MIKE FLEMING and PENNY WEAVER

THERE ARE NEARLY AS MANY "TYPES" OF gays as there are gay people. Social and support organizations abound for gays of every ilk based on a wide variety of interests and demographic factors. And that includes gays who love getting together for "back to basics" outdoor activities that not only engender camaraderie, but for many an overt or indirect renewal of their personal spirituality.

The gay men's spiritual group for outdoor enthusiasts that springs to mind for many is the Pagan-based Radical Faeries, founded in 1979 by gay rights pioneer and Matchine Society founder Harry Hay, who died last year.

"The Radical Faerie Fellowship is a diverse and unorganized group of gay men who center their spiritual lives around various and sundry pagan dogmatics," according to the group's Web site. "While no particular doctrine predominate...the movement is deeply rooted in the precepts of Native American spirituality. There are also Druids, Wiccans, Theists, Shaktas, Hindus and any number of other recognized and unrecognized beliefs present among Radical Faeries."

"Basically it's a bunch of guys who get together in the "70's spirit of free love," says Ian Schmitz, a longtime participant in outdoor Radical Faerie "gatherings" like the one scheduled this month in Tennessee.

"We aren't afraid of, and in fact celebrate, our sexuality through rituals and ancient practices," Schmitz says. "Woody retreats are perfect settings to be back in touch with Mother Earth and with our feelings for our fellow fugitives."

Some Faeries have reclaimed the word "faggot" as a rebuttal to negative use of the term in the same way some gays embrace the word "queer," he says.

The only aspect of the group that every Radical Faerie seems to agree on is that there is no one philosophy that governs their activities.

"We are self-defining," says the group's Web site. "We choose to be who we are, and there is no authority or our hearts. We gather together, get raped and beautiful in oh-so-many different ways, drop the world and open to each other — unless we don't feel like it, in which case we do something else."

GROWING TO INCLUDE MEMBERSHIP NATIONWIDE, GAY SPIRIT Visions is "committed to creating safe, sacred spaces for loving gay men to explore and strengthen our spiritual identity that is open to all spiritual paths," according to the group's Web site. The Atlanta-based group accomplishes its goal by creating a healing, spiritual community and help its members live with integrity by supporting each other and by sharing experiences and insights.

Gay Spirit Visions considers itself tribal in nature to provide escape and community and solace to its members.

"We at GSV use this tradition to provide a safe place for men who love men to speak from their hearts," the Web site states.

THE LOCALLY FOCUSED HOUSTON OUTDOOR GROUP brings together gay Bayou City residents for a number of activities based on enjoying nature.

HOG is defined in its monthly newsletter as "a social group for gay men, lesbian women and gay-friendly persons who enjoy the outdoors." The group sponsors events ranging from sports activities to social activities.

This month, HOG members plan an outing for bird watching on High Island. Known as one of the best bird-watching spots in the world, the island is home to Boy Scout Woods and Smith Woods.

According to HOG's newsletter, April is the best month to see North America's most colorful songbirds here, including Scarlet Tanagers, Blue Grosbeaks, Baltimore Orioles and more as they migrate from South America across the Gulf of Mexico to the Texas coast. During the April 19 HOG trip, members also will visit a nearby rookery to see Roseate Spoonbills, Great Blue Herons and other birds raising their hatchlings.

Cost for the trip is $5, which benefits the Houston Audubon Society and the group will leave from the House of Pies on Kirby at 10 a.m. For more information, contact Jeff at 713-728-9792.

During the weekend of April 25-27, HOG members will hold an Enchanted Rock campout at the state natural area about 70 miles west of Austin. Reservations must be made. Pets are welcome; vaccination papers must be shown at the park gate and pets must be on a six foot leash.

The group plans a pre-campout at 7 p.m. Monday, April 21, at Cafe Express on Kirby between Alabama and Richmond. For more information, contact Howard K. at 713-586-4074.

Future events for the Houston Outdoor Group include Guadalupe River rafting from June 4-6.

ALSO FOCUSED ON GAY HOUSTONIANS IS THE Rainbow Fishing Club, which frequently sponsors deep-sea fishing in addition to other fishing trips.

Upcoming deep-sea fishing trips include an eight-hour tour on Saturday, April 26; a 12-hour trip on Sunday, May 11; a 12-hour trip on Saturday, May 31; a 12-hour trip on Sunday, June 15; an eight-hour trip on Sunday, June 15; and a 12-hour trip on Saturday, June 28.

MORE INFO
Houston Outdoor Group • 713-KAMP-OUT
Bird watching on High Island • April 19
Enchanted Rock Weekend • April 25-27
Rainbow Fishing Club • 713-923-6381

The group also invites experienced and novice anglers alike for fishing at the Galveston Pier. This event will be held Saturday, May 17, at the pier at 8th and Seawall Boulevard. Cost of admission to the pier is $8 per person, or $4 for children age 12 and under, or $6 for senior citizens over age 60.

"Womyn" festivals celebrate great outdoors with music, camaraderie

By MIKE FLEMING

A love of the outdoors inspires live music festivals that begin as soon as outside temperatures rise and continue through the fall.

The Gulf Coast Womyn's Festival and the huge Southern Womyn's Festival kick off the season with popular performers and camping under the stars with a distinct lesbian bent.

First up, the 10th Annual Gulf Coast Womyn's Festival takes place at Arizona-owned Camp Sister Spirit on Omet, Miss., over Easter Weekend, April 17-19.

"This festival creates a community of sisters of many ages, many races and many walks of life for empowerment, encouragement and entertainment," says Brenda Henson, who founded the Camp Sister Spirit site with her partner, Wanda Henson.

The couple faced adversity by neighboring residents when they decided to found the site. After years of harassment, deliberately set fires and failed legal attempts to shut down the site based on moral objections, the Hensons haven't experienced any such actions in more than four years and now exist peacefully with neighbors, they say.

This year's lineup at the festival includes rockabilly queen and most dishes, a craft show, 15-step sessions for those who desire them, games, booths and workshops. MUSICIANS SCHEDULED TO PERFORM INCLUDE AARON DOUGLAS as Lizzie Borden, Dorothy Hirsch, Trish Williams, Shelley Greer and Flash Silvermoon.

Pre-registration is required, and men and accompanied children are welcome, Henson says.

As the legendary Gulf Coast Festival attracts hundreds of visitors from around the region, Southern Womyn's Festival books big-name lesbian acts that draw national crowds of thousands to its women-only festivities.

The May 8-10 event this year features performances of lesbian folk Holy Name and Orville Winters. Other top-notch performers, including Emily Square, Leslie Dale Balikian, connives Vicki Show and Morgan Green and spoken word artists Robin O’White and C. Carter, are set to appear. "There's something for everyone, to cater to what your musical preferences," says JoLa Johnson, co-founder of the event.

Gulf Coast Womyn's Festival • April 17-20 • Camp Sister Spirit • Omet, MS • www.campgulfspire.com • Southern Womyn's Festival • May 8-10 • www.gaywomyn.org • Desire Hill • Bowdon, Georgia 30108

APPOINTMENTS: Montrose Softball League hosts its first golf tournament as a charity fund-raiser this weekend. Page 19.

THEATER: 'Big Voice' shows that a delightful theater experience can include a little bit of religion. Page 18.
Masque Ball & Dinner
Friday, April 25 - 8pm
DoubleTree Hotel Downtown
Tickets on sale!
For more information, call 713.861.9149

30th Anniversary!

Noche Espiritual Worship Celebration
Saturday, April 26 - 7pm
Rev. David Pettitt (Pastor of ICM Monterrey Mexico) will offer the Spiritual Encouragement at the 7pm service.
Special music: The Noche Espiritual Music Team and The Anointing!

Scramble Golf Tournament
Saturday, April 26 - 8am
At Bear Creek Golf Course
Now registering players & sponsors!
For more information, call 713.937.7926 or 281.337.4546 or e-mail mccgolf03@yahoo.com.

30th Anniversary Worship Service
Sunday, April 27 - 1pm
Rev. Elder Troy Perry will offer the Spiritual Encouragement at 9am & 11am.
Join us for a Pot-Luck lunch after the 11am service.

Children's Easter Eggstravaganza!
Saturday, April 12
2-4pm

Holy Week Services
Palm Sunday Service
April 13 - 9am & 11am
Holy Wednesday Service
April 16 - 7pm
Maundy Thursday Service
April 17 - 7pm
Good Friday Service
April 18 - 7pm
Noche Espiritual Service
April 19 - 7pm
Easter Sunrise Service
April 20 - 6:30am
Easter Sunday Services
April 20 - 9am & 11am

2025 W. 11th St. @ T.C.Jester • 713-861-9149 • www.resurrectionmcc.org

Pamper Your Car!
America's Premier Car Care Center

$699
Express Exterior Wash
CLEAN CAR GUARANTEE!
Great Car Wash, Great Service, Great Price.

Express Exterior Wash
ultimate Full-Service Wash
Express Detail Package
Express Lube

Preserving Our Environment
by reclaiming and recycling our wash water through our state-of-the-art water recycling system we're able to use significantly less water than you'd use to wash your car at home. Recycled water is carefully filtered and treated before use, to leave your car sparkling clean.
Before any wastewater is discharged we remove oil, dirt, and detergents. And, we never release wastewater into storm drain, surface waters, or onto the ground. We're your neighbors, and this is our home too. We're doing our part to keep our environment clean for generations to come.

Children's Easter Eggstravaganza!
Saturday, April 12
2-4pm

Holy Week Services
Palm Sunday Service
April 13 - 9am & 11am
Holy Wednesday Service
April 16 - 7pm
Maundy Thursday Service
April 17 - 7pm
Good Friday Service
April 18 - 7pm
Noche Espiritual Service
April 19 - 7pm
Easter Sunrise Service
April 20 - 6:30am
Easter Sunday Services
April 20 - 9am & 11am

2025 W. 11th St. @ T.C.Jester • 713-861-9149 • www.resurrectionmcc.org
Joe Phillips

How to play the numbers on affordable but cool cars and come out a winner

Ford Taurus

Tired of the club scene? Need something sensible to offset your party-animal aura? Then look no further than the stable Taurus.

For 18 years, consumers have been bullish on Ford's bread-and-butter sedan. Practical, Roomy. And loaded as in standard features, not the sobriety status of some blind dates, as well. But we digress.

Thanks to high crash-test scores, it's also safe and secure. If only that were true of some blind dates, as well. But we digress.

If you're bullish on Ford's bread-and-butter sedan, that is.

Stylistic

Mazda 6 sport sedan • $29,050-$27,620

If macho is more your style, then jump in the athletic Mazda 6. Available in manual or automatic transmission, the V6 engine easily outruns the base model's pokey 4 cylinder.

The ride is firm yet smooth. The handling is taut but compliant. Fit and finish are highly toned with sleek trim inside and a muscular, head-turning body.

Damn, it's one of the few cars that force you to the gym so you can look as buff as it does. A tight rear — not a good thing in this

Toyota Echo

Versatile

Subaru Forester SUV • $20,545-22,895

Introduced five years ago, Subaru's Forester was fully redesigned for 2005. It's fresher, larger and has an all-new body for better handling. Best of all, the "Maritma-mobile" is full of standard features, including power windows, locks and mirrors, cruise control, tilt steering, AM/FM/weatherband/CX audio, side airbags, ABS, daytime running lights and remote keyless entry.

Other pluses include better brakes, high crash-test results and two option packages. It still offers high, firm seating, a car-like ride and full-time/all-wheel drive. So Forester still retains all the original qualities that made it appealing in the first place.

Five under 25

SUCH A MAGICAL NUMBER. 25. A silver anniversary. The sum of the first five odd numbers (1,3,5,7,9). And five years to the big three-O. Ah, the lure of Botox injections.

It's also the limit (at $25,000) that many gay guys or gals needs to go cruisin' — in a car, that is.

Whatever the criteria — practical, fun, cutting-edge, stylish, versatile — there's no need to spend a penny, or a quarter, more.

PRACTICAL

Ford Taurus Sedan • $15,415-$23,730

Tired of the club scene? Need something sensible to offset your party-animal aura? Then look no further than the stable Taurus.

For 18 years, consumers have been bullish on Ford's bread-and-butter sedan. Practical, Roomy. And loaded as in standard features, not the sobriety status of some blind dates, as well. But we digress.

Thanks to high crash-test scores, it's also safe and secure. If only that were true of some blind dates, as well. But we digress.

If you're bullish on Ford's bread-and-butter sedan, that is.

STYLISH

Mazda 6 Sport Sedan • $29,050-$27,620

If macho is more your style, then jump in the athletic Mazda 6. Available in manual or automatic transmission, the V6 engine easily outruns the base model's pokey 4 cylinder.

The ride is firm yet smooth. The handling is taut but compliant. Fit and finish are highly toned with sleek trim inside and a muscular, head-turning body.

Damn, it's one of the few cars that force you to the gym so you can look as buff as it does. A tight rear — not a good thing in this

FUN

Toyota Echo Compact Coupe/Sedan • $10,105-$10,695

Sometimes you feel like a nut, sometimes you don't. With Toyota's Echo, it easy to have fun either way. Nutty details include 'Will & Grace' reruns instead.

VERSATILE

Subaru Forester SUV • $20,545-22,895

Introduced five years ago, Subaru's Forester was fully redesigned for 2005. It's fresher, larger and has an all-new body for better handling. Best of all, the "Maritma-mobile" is full of standard features, including power windows, locks and mirrors, cruise control, tilt steering, AM/FM/weatherband/CX audio, side airbags, ABS, daytime running lights and remote keyless entry.

Other pluses include better brakes, high crash-test results and two option packages. It still offers high, firm seating, a car-like ride and full-time/all-wheel drive. So Forester still retains all the original qualities that made it appealing in the first place.

Cutting Edge

Pontiac Vibe Sport Wagon • $16,375-$19,735 • MPG: 26

Lord knows many gays can't see themselves in a station wagon. But a gas-guzzling SUV seems so politically incorrect these days. And last time I checked, minivans were strictly for breeders and FTD deliveries.

But back to the point How to get the most out of this as the limit (at $25,000) that many gay guys or gals needs to go cruisin' — in a car, that is.

Whatever the criteria — practical, fun, cutting-edge, stylish, versatile — there's no need to spend a penny, or a quarter, more.

PRACTICAL

Ford Taurus Sedan • $15,415-$23,730

Tired of the club scene? Need something sensible to offset your party-animal aura? Then look no further than the stable Taurus.

For 18 years, consumers have been bullish on Ford's bread-and-butter sedan. Practical, Roomy. And loaded as in standard features, not the sobriety status of some blind dates, as well. But we digress.

Thanks to high crash-test scores, it's also safe and secure. If only that were true of some blind dates, as well. But we digress.

If you're bullish on Ford's bread-and-butter sedan, that is.

STYLISH

Mazda 6 Sport Sedan • $29,050-$27,620

If macho is more your style, then jump in the athletic Mazda 6. Available in manual or automatic transmission, the V6 engine easily outruns the base model's pokey 4 cylinder.

The ride is firm yet smooth. The handling is taut but compliant. Fit and finish are highly toned with sleek trim inside and a muscular, head-turning body.

Damn, it's one of the few cars that force you to the gym so you can look as buff as it does. A tight rear — not a good thing in this

FUN

Toyota Echo Compact Coupe/Sedan • $10,105-$10,695

Sometimes you feel like a nut, sometimes you don't. With Toyota's Echo, it easy to have fun either way. Nutty details include 'Will & Grace' reruns instead.

VERSATILE

Subaru Forester SUV • $20,545-22,895

Introduced five years ago, Subaru's Forester was fully redesigned for 2005. It's fresher, larger and has an all-new body for better handling. Best of all, the "Maritma-mobile" is full of standard features, including power windows, locks and mirrors, cruise control, tilt steering, AM/FM/weatherband/CX audio, side airbags, ABS, daytime running lights and remote keyless entry.

Other pluses include better brakes, high crash-test results and two option packages. It still offers high, firm seating, a car-like ride and full-time/all-wheel drive. So Forester still retains all the original qualities that made it appealing in the first place.

Cutting Edge

Pontiac Vibe Sport Wagon • $16,375-$19,735 • MPG: 26

Lord knows many gays can't see themselves in a station wagon. But a gas-guzzling SUV seems so politically incorrect these days. And last time I checked, minivans were strictly for breeders and FTD deliveries.

But back to the point How to get the most out of this as the limit (at $25,000) that many gay guys or gals needs to go cruisin' — in a car, that is.

Whatever the criteria — practical, fun, cutting-edge, stylish, versatile — there's no need to spend a penny, or a quarter, more.

PRACTICAL

Ford Taurus Sedan • $15,415-$23,730

Tired of the club scene? Need something sensible to offset your party-animal aura? Then look no further than the stable Taurus.

For 18 years, consumers have been bullish on Ford's bread-and-butter sedan. Practical, Roomy. And loaded as in standard features, not the sobriety status of some blind dates, as well. But we digress.

Thanks to high crash-test scores, it's also safe and secure. If only that were true of some blind dates, as well. But we digress.

If you're bullish on Ford's bread-and-butter sedan, that is.

STYLISH

Mazda 6 Sport Sedan • $29,050-$27,620

If macho is more your style, then jump in the athletic Mazda 6. Available in manual or automatic transmission, the V6 engine easily outruns the base model's pokey 4 cylinder.

The ride is firm yet smooth. The handling is taut but compliant. Fit and finish are highly toned with sleek trim inside and a muscular, head-turning body.

Damn, it's one of the few cars that force you to the gym so you can look as buff as it does. A tight rear — not a good thing in this

FUN

Toyota Echo Compact Coupe/Sedan • $10,105-$10,695

Sometimes you feel like a nut, sometimes you don't. With Toyota's Echo, it easy to have fun either way. Nutty details include 'Will & Grace' reruns instead.

VERSATILE

Subaru Forester SUV • $20,545-22,895

Introduced five years ago, Subaru's Forester was fully redesigned for 2005. It's fresher, larger and has an all-new body for better handling. Best of all, the "Maritma-mobile" is full of standard features, including power windows, locks and mirrors, cruise control, tilt steering, AM/FM/weatherband/CX audio, side airbags, ABS, daytime running lights and remote keyless entry.

Other pluses include better brakes, high crash-test results and two option packages. It still offers high, firm seating, a car-like ride and full-time/all-wheel drive. So Forester still retains all the original qualities that made it appealing in the first place.

Cutting Edge

Pontiac Vibe Sport Wagon • $16,375-$19,735 • MPG: 26

Lord knows many gays can't see themselves in a station wagon. But a gas-guzzling SUV seems so politically incorrect these days. And last time I checked, minivans were strictly for breeders and FTD deliveries.

But back to the point How to get the most out of this as the limit (at $25,000) that many gay guys or gals needs to go cruisin' — in a car, that is.

Whatever the criteria — practical, fun, cutting-edge, stylish, versatile — there's no need to spend a penny, or a quarter, more.
Theater can be divine

THE QUESTION ASKED AND THEN answered by both Steve Schalchlin and Jim Brochu in "The Big Voice: God or Merman?" is: Where does someone find direction in life? Throughout their separate and combined journeys on stage, the two talented performers share with the audience their travels on the road to understanding their place and God's role in the world.

It's fortunate, though, that the two are Merman queens and not Judy ones; otherwise, according to Jim's thinking, their travels together would have been doomed.

The above brand of humor is part and parcel to this autobiographical production of wit and music by two long-time partners: Jim, a Brooklyn-born Catholic, and Steve, a Southern Baptist from Texas. At an early age, both men were called to the service of God within those very different denominations, but the "big" voice never would arrive for them, even in the most sacred and devout of settings.

ACCORDING TO JIM, IT WAS ALWAYS the little voice in their heads that prevailed, and his practicing of papal blessings at the Vatican and Jim's studies at a Bible college were to no avail. However hard they would seek, their efforts came up comically short. Many moments and songs performed by the duo, about their careers and marriage, have that bittersweet edge to finding some sort of purpose in life.

"Our original concept was to write a play about God, but we found we were writing a play about each other," says Brochu. "We change the course of each other's lives all the time, and we never know it — that's what the play is about."

BROCHU, A 30-YEAR VETERAN OF stage and screen, has his epiphany of career direction in musical theater, when he gets to meet Ethyl Merman. From that moment, he understands that God can be found in the theater. His tale of that discovery, with its subtle humor and tested compassion, includes times when the public's hate for his homosexuality is not understood. The question of where God is during those times remains an underlying concern in his career.

As for Schalchlin, a composer/lyricist best known for his semi-autobiographical, award-winning work "The Last Session," his darkest but most miraculous moment comes upon being diagnosed with AIDS. Of the many poignant and comical numbers in "The Big Voice: God or Merman?," the one concerning Steve's coping with that disease is the most remarkable. At a time when there was little known about the illness, Steve, along with Jim's tremendous faith, conquered it literally through hope, the "impossible" hope of performing his work on Broadway. Not only did he overcome the disease, but also his show played on Broadway for nine months.

If you are in the mood, then, to hear personal testimony of the power of theater to change lives, go see "The Big Voice: God or Merman?" By way of Jim Brochu's and Steve Schalchlin's humor and catchy tunes, you will leave with a lighter heart and a little more "religion."
SMYAL Seeks Executive Director

The Sexual Minority Youth Assistance League (SMYAL) is seeking an executive director to assume overall financial and operational management of the organization and is responsible for implementing the strategic plan developed by the Board. ED will be working with a proven track record in staff supervision, budgeting and financial management and fundraising. Resumes due by May 6, 2003. Competitive salary and benefits. Email edsearch@smyal.org for position description and application guidelines.

Legal Answers

You can find the Q Puzzle each week in the Classifieds sections

SMYAL Seeks Executive Director

The Sexual Minority Youth Assistance League (SMYAL) is seeking an executive director to assume overall financial and operational management of the organization and is responsible for implementing the strategic plan developed by the Board. ED will be working with a proven track record in staff supervision, budgeting and financial management and fundraising. Resumes due by May 6, 2003. Competitive salary and benefits. Email edsearch@smyal.org for position description and application guidelines.

Legal Answers

You can find the Q Puzzle each week in the Classifieds sections

SMYAL Seeks Executive Director

The Sexual Minority Youth Assistance League (SMYAL) is seeking an executive director to assume overall financial and operational management of the organization and is responsible for implementing the strategic plan developed by the Board. ED will be working with a proven track record in staff supervision, budgeting and financial management and fundraising. Resumes due by May 6, 2003. Competitive salary and benefits. Email edsearch@smyal.org for position description and application guidelines.
Your better half exists.

Ready to meet him?
With over 400,000 quality profiles and more joining every day, PlanetOut Personals is the online love spot for lasting connections instead of one-night stands.

Try it FREE today.

Meet your match in Houston at http://men.planetout.com/houston
SERIOUS PUMPERS
Maxium Control Hyperemlination (Vacuum) System
Polymer Cylinders with a welded flange for an air tight seal
Brass construction pump with an accurate pressure gauge
Spa or hose material, easy grip handle, quick connects Cylinders in stock up to 4' x 12'
713-944-6010 eros1207.com
1207 Spencer Hwy
1-45 So. exit left on College

Get results! Call now at 713.529.8490 to place your ad in the directory!
LOVE

LUST

AND EVERYTHING IN BETWEEN

GAY.COM

HUGE PERSONALS
FREE CHAT
HOT VIDEO CHAT
READY TO PLAY? HTTP://MEN.GAY.COM/HOUSTON
Aries (March 21 to April 20)
This looks like a festive week for you, Aries dearie. The Sun is in your sign, and the full moon falls in your house of love on April 16, which suggests that you can switch from top to bottom and back again quite smoothly. A Gemini is just as versatile as you are.

Taurus (April 21 to May 20)
All in all it looks like a jolly week for you, Taurus. Eat, drink, and get wild with the Sagittarius of your choice. Choose joy over guilt, but make sure you live your life with integrity, sweetie. If you can balance decadence with diligence, you'll be on par with your greatest heroes and heroines.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)
Romantic relationships are super intense this week, Gemini. You could come to a realization about yourself as a lover. Perhaps you are finally ready for a change — or a total transformation. You've coasted by always giving other people what they want. Now it's time to listen to your own libido. A Leo is all ears.

Cancer (June 22 to July 22)
This is a sweet and significant week for you, dearie. Mars in your opposite sign of Capricorn may be making you feel a bit oppressed, as if the world is grinding up on you. It's not. But the full moon on April 16 could make you feel both powerful and paranoid. Express your every feeling in bed with a Virgo.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22)
Mars is making an intense transit through the health and fitness sector of your chart, so you may suddenly feel very in touch with your body. Don't get scared — get active. It's a good time to get a Virgo to touch your body, sweetie. Your nerve endings are screaming out for constant attention.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)
Mars is sitting pretty in your passionate fifth house. This means you might experience a breakthrough in your love life, which begins in your bedroom. Another Virgo could have a deep and important effect on your soul. The shallow with this sign of Capricorn may be making you feel a bit oppressed, as if the world is grinding up on you. It's not. But the full moon on April 16 could make you feel both powerful and paranoid. Express your every feeling in bed with a Virgo.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
The key to happiness this week is to surround yourself with people you can trust. You know how to charm all sorts of dangerous types, but I'd recommend sticking close to folks (especially of the same sex) who are pure of heart. An Aries wants to spend the full moon (April 16) with you. You're in for a howl.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
This is a sexy, sassy and psychic week for you, Sag. The pressure is on for you to be all that you can be — and do all that you can do — with many suitors or just one. Let the full moon on April 16 completely pass before you decide whether to be completely monogamous or completely a whore. A Pisces may convince you to do both.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
This is a sweet and significant week for you, deanie. Mars in your opposite sign of Capricorn may be making you feel a bit oppressed, as if the world is grinding up on you. It's not. But the full moon on April 16 could make you feel both powerful and paranoid. Express your every feeling in bed with a Virgo.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)
Your power time is beginning, Capricorn. Get over your melancholy ways and start acting out, sweetie — preferably in a constructive way. Focus on the one work project that means the most to you. And make sure that you set time aside for your friends and family and your love life (an Aquarius loves to love you, baby). In other words, start acting like a normal person, and soon you'll be one!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)
This is an intense full-moon week for you, dear. The Moon peaks in your house of adventure, so get adventurous about love — please! Another Aquarius is moved by your deep feelings but may be terrified, too. Sound familiar? Be careful what illicit substances you put into your bod. You're super sensitive now, honey.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20)
You could receive public recognition for your hard work early in the week, lovie. Take advantage of your five minutes of notability and promote your new projects. A Scorpio wants to promote the idea that you two are soul mates — now and forever. Make sure you control the spin on your love life, baby.

Jill DeArmian is the author of the best-selling "Queer Astrology for Men" and "Queer Astrology for Women" (both from St. Martin's Griffin). For information on charts and consultations, call 212-841-0177 or e-mail @Scopes@aol.com.
Switch to Total Communications Options™ from Allegiance Telecom.

WE DOUBLE-DOG DARE YOU.

DUMP YOUR DSL, DROP YOUR DIAL-UP.

You can't beat our business telecom service for quality, reliability and value. Call 1.866.THE.DARE and let us prove it. It's a fact – we are the better choice.

CALL NOW & SAVE $700. Total Communications Options™ is big business tools at small business prices.

Our premium fiber-optic network delivers reliable local, long distance and Internet service through one cost-saving, T1-grade connection — including "always on" Internet access with speeds of up to 1 Mbps.

allegiance telecom, inc.
One source for business telecom.

Total Communications Options™
1.866.THE.DARE

www.allegiance telecom.com